How to Become an Accredited Parking Organization

ACCREDITED PARKING
ORGANIZATION™

What is the Accredited Parking Organization Program?

Accredited Parking Organization (APO) is a new designation for parking organizations that have achieved a comprehensive standard of excellence. The International Parking & Mobility Institute (IPMI) has established this standard to recognize best practices in responsible parking management and operations, customer service, professional development, security, sustainability, and more.

The APO establishes a quality benchmark by which a parking management organization conducts its business and maintains its facilities and services. Becoming an APO signifies an organization's commitment to ongoing evaluation and improvement of program outcomes through the implementation of industry best practices.

Benefits of Accreditation

- Engages managers and staff to learn and adopt industry best practices.
- Encourages aspiring organizations to improve their programs, facilities, services, and results.

- Situates an organization within an advanced peer group for networking and business development purposes.
- Makes a positive impression on patrons and stakeholders.
- Gives confidence to the public that the organization adheres to a strict code of ethics.

Parking organizations can now become an Accredited Parking Organization (APO) by meeting standards for excellence in operations and management.

Accreditation Process

Applicant organizations review criteria and gather information to work with a third-party, IPMI-approved site reviewer to organize and present evidence that demonstrates accomplishment of each required item in the APO standard. The reviewer will visit the applicant site and work through the evidence to determine suitability and applicability. Based on the reviewer's recommendation, IPMI may award the APO designation at the appropriate level. The APO designation is bestowed for three years, after which renewal is required to maintain the accreditation.

Accreditation and Accreditation with Distinction

Accreditation and Accreditation with Distinction designations are granted by IPMI's independent APO Board, established to ensure and support the development and maintenance of industry standards representing the highest level of professionalism and competency. Accreditation indicates that an organization has met 25 required criteria, plus 80% of the remaining 105 criteria. Accredited with Distinction is reserved for those organizations meeting 80% of 86 criteria that represent exceptional practices. Both levels of accreditation require that at least one facility meet 80% of 43 required criteria in Part II of the matrix.

Criteria for Success

The APO Manual for Applicants defines the performance measures and documentation requirements of the program and is available for download at parking-mobility.org/APO. The materials identify criteria in categories related to industry best practices and program features in institutional, municipal, medical, university, airport, commercial, private, and other parking programs. To satisfy each of the criteria, the applicant is required to present clear, objective documentation for third-party review. APO reviewers are trained and qualified by IPMI based on their successful completion of APO training seminars that focus on accreditation best practices.
